Canadians Trim All-Stars in Thrilling Game 3-2

Dave Kemp in Goal for Canadians Stirs Enthusiasm of Crowd--All-Stars Brilliant Attacks Turned Aside By Stonewall Defence - Schnepf and Fraser Score for Canadians; Duchak and Carr for All-Stars.

With a renovated rink, bright, cleanliness as they went in ahead lights and the band playing "O Canada," the hockey season opened this evening with a "bang" for a good cause--the Elks Christmas Cheer fund. And the response was generous. Coleman and the Pass towns turning out to see the "All Stars" drew Kemp out a moment later but had skated too far past the net for a shot on goal.

Bill Gate, All Star coach, really drove his team in the third period for the tying counter, but was balked by Kemp who stopped rubber from every angle. All Stars sent wave after wave of offensive power in on Kemp but to no avail as Canadians backedchecked relentlessly to spoil every shot on goal.

A banquet was held for the teams after the game in the Grand Union hotel. Reservations are being made at the Grand Union for the special bus which will accompany the "hockey special" to Lethbridge on Saturday. Miss Mae Bell stated that the bus transporting the fans will leave Coleman at 1 p.m. and will return shortly after the game.

Official Kootenay League Scorer Announcement was made this week of the appointment of Urbane Doughty, of Lethbridge, as official scorer for the Kootenay hockey league. Announcement came from W. E. Jackson of Trail, B. C., league secretary. Concise and up-to-the-minute records of the league scoring will be kept. Each club has been supplied with score sheets, and official scorers to be appointed at each arena will be required to send these records to the league scorer immediately following each game.

Many scoring chances went begging as both teams missed almost certain goals. Ainsworth missing an open net at the start of the second period. Power plays by the All Stars were marred time and again by over-an-

Boy Scouts Entertained With Fine Pictures

Parents Urged to Give Support to Re-Organization of Boy Scouts Association in Coleman

Meeting in the Catholic church hall on Tuesday evening, boys of the Catholic Scout troop under Frank Abousafy, Scout Master, and Nicky Nicholas, assistant, together with a few parents and others interested in the promotion of the movement for the benefit of Coleman boys, saw some interesting films on Scout activities in Canada and other parts of the world. They were shown by Mr. R. H. Johnson, assistant executive secretary for Alberta, and many of the Alberta scenes were taken by Mr. Johnson with his movie camera, some in natural colors.

Particularly interesting were the pictures of the Jasper scouts and several fine pictures were taken at close range of fine specimens of mountain sheep, which had become so tame that they would eat salt from the hands of the Scouts. Ordinarily these animals are most difficult to get within range, because of the constant hunting by man, but these pictures show what can be done by kindness to animals, and the pleasures that may be obtained by hunting with a camera instead of a gun.

Mr. Johnson's visit was made primarily with the object of interesting parents in the re-organization of the Boy Scouts Association in the Crow's Nest Pass. The Catholic troop has 14 boys, and the committee includes J. J. McIntyre, J. A. McDonald, J. S. D'Appolonia, J. H. Kapalka, Rev. J. T. Dunbar, besides the scoutmaster and assistant. Mrs. Borden, whose good organization work among the Girl Guides has maintained interest in that organization, was present at Tuesday's meeting, along with Mrs. F. H. Graham, Mrs. N. Nicholas and several other ladies.

Efforts will be made to further encourage this fine work of Scouts and Girl Guides, for it is a work worthy of generous support from all parents and others who value the disciplinary and character training which it provides.

Among the pictures shown were those of the jamboree in Calgary a few years ago, and of the great jamboree in England when 50,000 Scouts from all parts of the world were in camp.

How to Get Good Reports

Organizations desiring good reports of their activities should see facilities are provided for a reporter. Too often no provision is made to facilitate his work, yet he is expected to pay his way in to turn in a good report. Frank Barrington always looks after the reporters, seeing that a table and chair is available. In most other cases nothing is provided, not even a pleasant smile. Hockey games have to be reported standing on one foot with a pad and pencil, no table to rest the pad on. Of course, the home town reporter can stand it--usually he has to--but how does it appear to visiting pressmen? Their thought would be that the place is still "out in the sticks."

Mrs. J. Smith left recently for Merritt, B. C. where she will reside during the winter months.

Lethbridge and Kimberley Here Next Week

The hockey menu for next week lists two spicy games to be served up for the enjoyment of fans. Monday, Dec. 13, Lethbridge Maple Leafs will make their initial appearance on local ice this season and provide the locals with their first home game. Leafs have made a very creditable showing in pre-season games, taking both Calgary teams into camp as well as a Saskatchewan team. They lost Wednesday evening to the Kootenay All Stars 4-3. They meet Coleman on Saturday at Lethbridge and an idea of their strength should be given at this game.

On Thursday the world champions and former Allan cup winners, Kimberley Dynamiters, will be here. Kimberley has the best reputation in the league as a team, and is a good "gate" to any team in the league. Outside of retaining most of their star players of previous seasons and the addition of two juniors, nothing much is known as to how the team shapes up this year. One thing is evident, a reputation is not going to win hockey games in this league; Kimberley will have to get out and play real hockey to retain their laurels this season.

All Stars Defeat Lethbridge 5-3

Kootenay All-Stars trimmed Lethbridge Maple Leafs 5-3 in the game sponsored by the Lethbridge Gyros in aid of their Christmas Cheer fund. Lethbridge were 2-0 at one stage of the game but fell away before the powerful attack of the All Stars in the second period when the latter team scored four goals. Local fans who witnessed the game state that Lethbridge has a big husky team who are fairly fast. One fan expressed her opinion that Coleman should be able to defeat Lethbridge without much trouble on Saturday.

Council Notes

Regular meeting of the council was held on December 7. Present, Mayor Pattinson, Councilors Allan, Haysom, Chapman and Burrows.

The minutes of the last regular meeting and the cash statement for November were adopted as read. Licensing of Trades and Businesses Act for 1937 was ordered adhered to and filed.

A donation of $10.00 was granted to the Woods Christian Home in Calgary.

Notice that a motion for a by-law will be brought in at the next regular meeting to appoint a returning officer for the 1938 elections.

The secretary was ordered to write the immigration authorities informing them the council has no objections to V. Smolik bringing his fiancée from Poland.

Certain relief matters were left in the hands of the town police.

The chief of police was instructed to order a new uniform. The report from Auditor E. D. Battrum and the financial statement from January to September 1937 was accepted.

The letter from E. D. Battrum regarding the Coleman Light & Water Co. was accepted, and the secretary was instructed to write to the company recommending special precautions be taken to keep the intake pipe from freezing during the severe weather.

A letter from A. Balloch, secretary of the Coleman Curling Club, requesting that lights be installed on Mayfair avenue, was received. The council stated it would be willing to co-operate with the club by placing two lights near the rink, providing they place light over the entrances to the skating and curling rinks.

Accounts were presented amounting to approximately $600.00 and if found correct were ordered paid.

Intermediates Organize For Season

J. S. D'Appolonia Elected President; Mel Cousins Secretary

Sixteen enthusiastic supporters of the Intermediate hockey club met in the council chamber on Friday evening and elected a new slate of officers for the season. Officers elected were J. S. D'Appolonia, president; Melville Cousins, secretary; J. Denholm, G. Clarke, executive; J. Denholm, team manager; G. Clarke, trainer.

Four Pass towns, Hillcrest, Bellevue, Blaimore and Coleman have formed an intermediate league with J. V. McDougall and R. F. Barnes as president and secretary respectively. The schedule will be released shortly. The local team had their first work-out at the arena on Friday, several players showing up very well.

Excel Builders' Supply Co. will supply sweaters and socks for the team, which will be known as the Excel. The business section of town was solicited during the week-end and the team met with fair response. A dance will be held in the Italian hall on Friday, Dec. 17, with Arcadians orchestra in attendance. Since the teams are so closely located, travelling expenses are expected to be kept down to a minimum and with reasonable support the executive expect to keep in the clear financially.

Need Is Great

As the eighth year of economic and agricultural depression for a substantial area of the Western Canadian prairie provinces moves towards its close the need for the Federal government to assume full financial, if not administrative, responsibility for relief in all its phases, including medical and hospital costs, and administrative charges becomes more imperative, and not only in the rural districts but in the urban centres as well.

Under the relief act up to and including 1934 and Saskatchewan the Federal government has assumed full financial responsibility for direct relief in what is known as the Federal drought area, comprising a substantial area of municipal units and unorganized territories together with the towns and villages contained in those areas. The provincial governments are required along with the municipalities to bear hospital and medical costs in the Federal drought area and in addition the provincial governments must match the Federal monthly grants in aid, dollar for dollar, as a joint contribution towards direct relief expenditures in rural and urban municipalities outside the drought area.

The Federal contribution to the drought area is an outright gift, not to be repaid and is accompanied by the proviso that neither the whole nor a portion of it may be worked out.

Thus, within the Federal drought area the provincial governments and municipalities still have to bear the not inconsiderable cost of medical care and hospitalization and outside the drought area the municipalities, urban and rural, continue to carry a percentage of direct relief expenditures, the costs of medical and hospital care and administration charges.

Relief Debts Storing

While it is true that the larger urban centres to-day are carrying a smaller percentage of direct relief expenditures, at the same time the accumulated burden of overhead from borrowings to provide for their share of direct relief expenditures in past years has been rapidly mounting during a period when there was no market for their securities and to-day the credit of many of the cities is threatened with collapse, at a time when the full burden cannot be passed on to a decreasing number of solvent taxpayers whose earnings are declining.

Furthermore, it must be remembered that the plight of these cities has been accentuated in recent years by the necessity of taking care of an influx of rural population who have established residence for a sufficient length of time to qualify for city relief.

Faced with this situation it is not surprising that the demand from the governing bodies of cities in both Alberta and Saskatchewan to be relieved of this burden is becoming more vociferous and that in Alberta, at least, the cities' demands are accompanied by a threat to cut off relief on a date to be named unless further assistance is forthcoming from the senior governments. Conferences of the mayors of Saskatchewan cities have been called with prospects that a similar ultimatum may be issued.

Must Go To Ottawa

If the cities are in earnest and demonstrate that there is something more than moral suasion in their intentions to set a relief cut-off date and will carry them out it is quite predictable that the provincial governments will have to lay the necessary charge on the Ottawa doorstep, for the provinces are in no better financial position to carry the burden than the municipalities themselves.

With the end of the financial tether in sight for the cities and the provinces the need for greater Federal assistance has become very great, but even greater is the need that assistance take the form of work in place of donations or dotes in cash and kind, wherever it may be feasible and to the maximum possible extent in the interests of the recipients and the taxpayers alike, and more particularly should this form of assistance be made applicable to relief in the urban centres.

Work Is First Consideration

In this connection it is interesting to note that the Alberta cities made the provision of work one of two alternatives submitted to government authorities when they asked for relief from the loss they are carrying, either by providing sufficient government-financed works to reduce relief rolls to a minimum or by assuming the entire responsibility for the administration of unemployment relief.

Even if the Federal government should assume responsibility for the administration of unemployment relief the necessity for providing it in the form of work is still just as great as under relief fully financed by the government and administered by the municipality, not only from the viewpoint of the taxpayer but also because of the moral as well as economic benefits to the relief recipient.

Taxpayers are tired of seeing millions spent without any return and a large percentage of relief recipients would infinitely prefer an independent means of support to gifts.

B.C. Government Program

Would Extend Northern Boundaries To The Yukon

Premier Pattullo outlined the British Columbia legislature a 26-point program of government objectives designed to make the province "a beehive of industry and development, with economic and social security from the 49th parallel to its northern boundary, and from Alberta to the Pacific ocean, with our people happy and prosperous."

Among the 26 objectives enumerated by the premier in his speech winding up the budget debate were these:

Maintenance of Empire tariff preference for the benefit of the province's primary industries and at the same time expansion of the province's business with the United States and other countries.

Bringing about construction of a highway through British Columbia and the Yukon.

Extension of British Columbia's boundaries "not only to take in the Yukon territory but also the territory east of the Yukon following the 120th meridian to the North Pole, which would add 400,000 square miles to British Columbia's 365,000."

Establishment of transportation facilities with the Peace River country and northern British Columbia as soon as possible.

Linking of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway—extending now from the head of Howe Sound about 300 miles to Quesnel, B.C.—with Canada's two national railway systems.

Co-operation with the Dominion to the end that all unemployed and temporarily unemployed able to work may be able to sustain themselves in reasonable comfort.

Others included improvement of the financial position of municipalities, establishment of better understanding between employers and employees, improvement of labor conditions and improvement through legislation and administration of "the health conditions of our people."

Premier Pattullo's proposal to extend the boundaries of British Columbia to the North Pole would bring the greater part of two Arctic islands and a vast expanse of ice within the provincial borders.

Extension of the province's eastern boundary along the 120th meridian to the Pole would bring into the province of British Columbia the Beaufort sea and about half of Prince Patrick Island into British Columbia.

Many Priceless Volumes

China's Interest In Bible Was Evident In Exhibition

An exhibition of Bibles in Peiping this year evidenced China's interest in the Christian Scriptures. There were 300-entries, representing 67 languages and dialects, of which 17 were Chinese. Among the Bibles were some of a costly character, and others of priceless historical value. The volumes were lent by libraries, universities, individuals and various mission groups. The British and Foreign Bible Society lent the four Morrison Bible of 1823 and the Morrison New Testament of that same date, printed from wooden blocks made 10 years earlier. There was also the first Protestant Chinese version to be published.

No volume, however, attracted as much attention as the Mandarin Bible loaned by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek the one he used during his imprisonment at the time of the Sian revolt in December, 1936.

A youthful son of Calgary put the sparkle in London's latest ice extravaganza "Marina" at the Empress stadium.

He is 23-year-old Eric Watt, whose comic capers on skates brought him praise from critics and applause from the queen. London newspapers crooned him with saying he came from being "just like any other ice spectacle."

Wait appeared as a cowboy, an inebriate in evening dress and a be-bustled lady of the 90's. And the big ice palace rocked with laughter. He told reporters afterward he had been about four years in professional ranks.

FLIN FLON

"The Story of Its Finding and Position To-day"

By PRATT KUHN

(Ed. Note: We are indebted to B. F. Townsley, Toronto, author of "Mine Finders" for some historical material used in the first part of this story.)

There are some things you want to do and seemingly never arrive at the accomplishment. My visit to Flin Flon was one thing I'd looked forward to for years. In July, 1937, was the first time I got there.

While living in Winnipeg from 1916 to 1922, during some years of which I was on the publicity committee of the city, the name Flin Flon was one thing I'd looked forward to for years. In July, 1937, was the first time I got there.

While living in Winnipeg from 1916 to 1922, during some years of which I was on the publicity committee of the city, the name Flin Flon was one thing I'd looked forward to for years. In July, 1937, was the first time I got there.

In a virgin forest on the banks of a lake was where Tom Creighton found this mine—to-day you wouldn't recognize the spot. However, let's start at the beginning because this is going to be a long story and must be told properly. It was the first gold discovery in Manitoba, 56 years ago, to the present Flin Flon produces at the rate of 4,500 tons daily and of a town of 7,000 built on solid rock in seven years.

The Trail To Flin Flon

In 1881 gold was discovered on Black Island in Winnipeg and on the mainland and on the south side of the Winnipeg River near its mouth in 1881. These early discoveries failed to stir interest in gold mining, although in 1908 a few more claims were staked in the Winnipeg, but no work was done.

Major A. E. Pollock, a French-Canadian, in 1908, staked the first claim in the area of Cranberry Lake. The first, if doubtful, prospecting of the area, may be credited to Canadian Tomists, Ltd., which had real estate interest in The Pas, and which sent out a party of prospectors comprising Hugh Vickers, George Bancroft, and W. B. Wright. In 1911 this group staked claims for copper along the Hudson Bay Railway at Wintering Lake. The first systematic prospecting in the area, however, may be said to date from April, 1913, when Tom Creighton, a cautious, experienced prospector and veteran of many camps, with John Mosher, Dan Mosher and Leon Dion, first prospected around Lac La Ronge.

Early in the spring of 1913, before the break up, some citizens of Prince Albert, Saskatchewan, grubstaked Creighton, John and Dan Mosher and Dion, who prospecting around Anisk, Beaver Lake, just across the international boundary from the present site of Flin Flon. In September of that year they staked the Prince Albert claims on the shores of Beaver Lake, the first gold discovered in that area.

The first engineer to examine and sample their find was John Alexander Reid, native of Halifax and graduate of Queen's University, who was acting for his principal, the Canadian Mining and Exploration Co. Next week we tell you just how the name Flin Flon was chosen.

Won Five Scholarships

Record Made In One Year By Toronto Girl Student

Winner of five scholarships valued at $2,975 during the past year, Annie MacPherson had the place of honor at the 11th annual commencement of East York Collegiate in Toronto. She graduated from the school last year.

Awards won by the student include the first Edward Blake scholarship valued at $425 for courses at University of Toronto, the Angus Burns memorial scholarship, $500; the Alkens scholarship, $625; class of 1911 scholarship, $650; and the second Alkens scholarship, $625, at Victoria College, University of Toronto.

At the commencement she was given prizes for the best essay and the best short story written for the school last year. She was her class valedictorian.

An Unusual Experience

Man Nearly Lost Life Swimming In Shrinking Lake

A man was swimming in a mountain lake in Jamaica.

He glanced at the shore, where he saw a crowd of people. They must have been moved a considerable distance to have been moved to the mountain-side.

Then he realized that it was not the clothes that had moved, but the lake. It was shrinking visibly as he swam.

He reached the shore only just in time. A few minutes later the last swirl of water disappeared through a hole in the mountain, through which he would have been sucked to death.

At one time, the penalty was more severe for killing a stag than for killing a human being in England.

A goose has about 12,000 muscles under the skin that do nothing but control the action of the feathers.

This is Tom Creighton in 1927 the man who found the Flin Flon mine in 1913.

A year later, Joseph Frohner and his brother, Alexander Henry, wintered at Anisk Lake, while in 1904 David Thompson mapped its geographical features.

But it was far, far not minerals, that interested the miners, and it remained for a moose to inadvertently guide a prospector to Manitoba's largest mine.

In 1903, when the Hudson Bay Railway was rushing northward over the tundra toward Hudson Bay, the trading post at The Pas received fresh stimulus, and in 1908 the German prospector, Hume, staked the first claim in the area of Cranberry Lake. The first, if doubtful, prospecting of the area, may be credited to Canadian Tomists, Ltd., which had real estate interest in The Pas, and which sent out a party of prospectors comprising Hugh Vickers, George Bancroft, and W. Synthetic Products

Goering Says Germany Will Corner The World Markets

General Hermann Goering, director of the four-year self-sufficiency plan, predicted that one day Germany would corner the world market in synthetic products.

When that day comes, he declared in a speech at Hamburg, a world which now looks with scorn upon Reich efforts in the field of synthetic products, will have these products on the German market.

In a warning to Germans not to waste anything, he said he felt a "superior joy when I became the greatest collector of garbage and bones in Germany."

National interest must take precedence over private or company interests. He reminded Germans of the necessity of obeying economic regulations.

"I am compelled to repeat with insistence that these laws, which were not promulgated as a joke, must be obeyed," he said. "Remember the sacred character of bread. Be parsimonious with bread. Waste nothing. Everything has value."

Turning to foreign policy, Goering declared the "steel axis" from Berlin to Rome—sweeps across central Europe and has been extended to Tokyo, and is a better peace axis than the "league of gossips assembling at Geneva."

"Now, then!" roared the sergeant-major, as he dismissed the men, "you will parade again at 2 o'clock precisely. When I say 2 o'clock precisely, I don't mean five past; I mean five to."

Dr. John Beattie Looks After World's Finest Anatomical Collection

Dr. John Beattie, for whom a headquarters research laboratory is being built above the headquarters of the Royal College of Surgeons in Lincoln's Inn Fields, London, has charge of the world's finest anatomical collection. It contains over 30,000 specimens. He is a Belfast man, with a tremendous capacity for sustained work, and has often gone for weeks at a time with only three or four hours' sleep a night, says the News of the World. He keeps himself fit by playing golf and squash, and by occasional excursions in a sailing yacht. His wife, like himself, is a doctor, and they have two young children. At present he is engaged in important work on the function of brain cells.

ALICE STEVENS' RECIPES

MINCE MEAT PATTIES

FOR HOLIDAY SEASON

The holidays call for parties and good times, particularly when the young folk are leaving home and from college. Refreshments are an important consideration and there are certain dishes that are accorded a place on the holiday menu.

Mince-meat patties add to the success of any party. In fact, many people try to have a Mince Meat Patty at twelve different times, during the holidays, believing that each one makes for a happy month during the ensuing year, especially when it is correct, is difficult to say, but we all agree that Mince Meat Patties are certainly a treat after skating or a tobogganing party.

The hostess finds these patties easy to serve. They can be made ahead of time and simply warmed up before serving. The mince meat can be made ahead of time in fact, many people make a winter's supply at once.

To make the patties make a rich pastry. Lay it about an inch thick. Fill with mince-meat and cut a small piece of pastry to cover. Bake for 15 minutes in a hot oven, with a sealier ring. Make small openings to allow the steam to escape. Moist the edges with cold water and press together. Bake as you would a mince pie.

I have a splendid recipe for mince-meat which I would be pleased to send you. Many people make their mince-meat without following any recipe. I have a few little trade secrets which they do not like to tell you. This recipe is a tried and tested one.

It is not wise to serve too many of these rich foods during the holiday season. The digestive system cannot stand up against too much strain, particularly when coupled with late hours. Serve some simple desserts to help balance up the meals.

BLUSHING APPLES

8 to 10 apples

3 cup sugar

1 cup water

Make a syrup by boiling the sugar and water. Select red apples. Wash and core but do not peel. Add enough sugar to make a thick syrup. Cover with a tight-fitting lid. Cook slowly and turn the apples occasionally. Watch carefully so that the apples do not get overcooked. Remove the apples to the serving dish. Pour the syrup over the apples. It will take up some of the pink color of the apples.

Readers are invited to write to Alice Stevens' Home Service for free advice on home cooking and household problems. Address letters to Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermott Ave. E., Winnipeg, Man.

Another Invention

Method Found Which Converts Pineapple Fibre Into Silk

A story in the Christian Science Monitor says the pineapple now bids fair to take the place of the silk not only the competitor of the hard-working silkworm, a way having been found to convert its fibres into "silk."

Invention has become so ingenious converting plant life into serviceable silk that it would be almost mild surprise to learn that a good quality of sandpaper is being made from spinach.

Both "pimento" and "pimiento" are names derived from the Spanish word for pepper.

British Gunboat Is Bombed And Captain, Two Others Wounded

Nanking. The commander of the British gunboat Ladybird and two other Britons were wounded and several hundred Chinese killed or wounded Sunday when Japanese aircraft bombed the waterfront and shipping at Kuhu, Yangtze river port 60 miles southwest of here.

The British steamships, the Tuckwong and Tatum, were hit. The Tuckwong was set afire and was believed to be a total loss. The Tatum's captain and his wife, both British, were wounded; their ship was beached.

Lieut. Commander H. D. Barlow of the Ladybird, although suffering from shrapnel wounds, manoeuvred his vessel alongside a bulk of old ships' stores offshore to avoid landings belonging to the British Butterfield and Swire company and towed it away before it was set afire.

The 5,770-ton Tuckwong, in flames, drifted against a bulk belonging to the Jardine Matheson Company, which then also burned. In Shanghai, officials of the Indo-China Steam Navigation Company, which owns the Tuckwong, said they believed she had between 2,000 and 3,000 Chinese refugees aboard.

The Wuhu American hospital, only one in that area, admitted more than 100 mutilated, burned or almost drowned persons. British and American volunteers worked all afternoon rescuing victims.

Five Japanese planes, apparently attempting to hit the Wuhu railway station, swooped over the crowded river port at 11 a.m. and dropped 10 bombs.

A Japanese communiqué in Shanghai said the attack aimed at hospitals, 30,000 and 50,000 Chinese troops retreating across the broad Yangtze in junks and other craft.

The Tatum, 1,560-ton vessel belonging to the China Navigation Company, was lost after being hit by a bomb. The ship was later recovered by Royal Navy men, who valiantly got her out of danger.

Both the Tuckwong and Tatum flew British ensigns and had big Union Jacks painted on their sides. Each carried four British officers with the rest of the crews Chinese.

Several civilians aboard a launch belonging to the British Asiatic Petroleum Company were reported wounded by bomb fragments. Some Britons were believed to be aboard the launch but this could not be confirmed.

Wuhu, in Anhwei province, is one of the busiest ports of the middle Yangtze, being opened by treaty to foreign trade. It apparently is the objective of strong Japanese columns reported engaged in heavy fighting along the Anhwei-Kiangsu border, some 80 miles to the east. Capture of Wuhu would cut off all chance for the 300,000 defenders of Nanking to retreat up the river.

Japanese airmen also raided Nanking, where 10 Chinese civilians were killed or wounded.

Aggressive Health Policy

Urges A National Approach On The Problem Of Sickness

Winnipeg. Dr. T. C. Routley of Toronto, urged that a national approach be made on the problem of sickness with extended medical research conducted.

Close to 12,000 Canadians died of cancer in 1936 and approximately 3,000 boys and girls were stricken by infantile paralysis this year. Those are two reasons why Canada needs an aggressive national health policy, said the general secretary of the Canadian Medical Association.

Dr. Routley, attending sessions here of the royal commission on Dominion-provincial relations as an observer for the Medical association, said he hoped one result of the commission's work would be a clear definition of responsibility for health.

Search Party Returns

Failed To Locate Trapper Lost In Northern Manitoba

The Pas, Man. A two-man search party, which unsuccessfully sought Wilfred Vickers, 39-year-old trapper, son of Police Magistrate Hugh Vickers of Herb Lake, has returned to Mile 185 of the Hudson Bay Railway.

Magistrate Vickers with Constable J. Lee of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police conducted the search. Merge details from the isolated point expressed the belief no further attempts to locate the man, missing since Nov. 4, could be made until next spring when ice over lakes and rivers thawed and waters near the trapper's Cormorant Lake cabin could be scanned.

A Posthumous Award

Ottawa. Geoffrey R. Milne of Sorel, Que., drowned last spring in a heroic but unsuccessful attempt to save a companion, was awarded the bronze cross by the executive committee of the Canadian general council of the Boy Scouts Association. The award was made posthumously.

NOMINEE FOR TROPHY

Captain A. S. Wilcockson, who commanded the "Caledonia" on its six flights between England and North America, has been recommended for the Johnston Memorial Trophy awarded annually by the Guild of Air Pilots for the finest feat of aviation.

Losses Are Revealed

Royal Commission Given Figures On Financial Condition In West

Winnipeg. The depression's heavy hand on Western Canada's agricultural income was displayed in the Manitoba brief presented before the Royal Commission on Dominion-Provincial relations. The severest crisis of the west's entire history followed the 1929-30 collapse.

In the six years from 1925 to 1930 the estimated total gross agricultural production on the prairies was $4,326,610,000, the brief said. In the six years from 1931 to 1936 the estimated agricultural income was $1,997,066,000, a decline of $2,329,554,000, or an average decline during the six-year period of $388,000,000 a year.

This six-year decline is approximately two-thirds of Canada's national debt. The Manitoba representation said. "It is more than seven times the combined debt of the three prairie provinces as of 1935."

Soviet Flyers Lost

Give Up Hope Of Finding Menaces

Moscow. Sigismund Levanevsky and five companions who vanished Aug. 13 on a trans-Polar flight from Moscow toward the United States, were given up for dead by Mikhail Vodopyanov, Russian Arctic flyer.

Upon his return from an extended search of the icy wastes in which the Levanevsky plane disappeared, he said four search planes under command of Ivan Chistyakov were remaining at Rudolph's island to hunt for plane wreckage as soon as conditions are favorable.

Vodopyanov still is convinced a regular trans-Polar airline between Soviet Russia and Norway would be established within a year or two as a result of successful previous flights of the route.

Hatfield Losses Appeal

Toronto. Appeal of Captain Freeman Hatfield against his conviction of fraud in connection with reparations paid for the loss of the schooner Gypsum Queen in the Irish sea during the Great War was dismissed in Ontario court of appeal.

"Between gold and iron, Machiavelli (Florentine diplomat and statesman of the 15th century) chose iron and we stood with him. In a European world of dynamite, bullets or cannon—we have made our choice—cannon."

The newspaper said The Times' editorial constituted "an involuntary but formidable contribution to our battle for autonomy." (Economic self-sufficiency.)

The New York Times in an editorial Nov. 30, declared "the United States has lost its leadership in world affairs" because "treaty-breaking governments and dictators have been convinced that for no cause short of actual invasion will the United States initiate or join in any effective movement to assure world peace."

It suggested "effective peace measures" be taken to re-establish leadership, including "private and public co-operation between Britons and Americans and others."

"What is fermenting in the fat bellies of the democracies as their program," it Popeo D'Italia said, "is economic strangulation, asphyxiation, blockade and starvation for the poor who do not eat five times a day. In this they reveal profound cowardliness because such a form of combat affects helpless people more than combatants."

"To discuss once more in the face of these manifestations the utility of autonomy would be criminal as well as ridiculous. To the threat of economic war, blockade and starvation, the only worthy of the extreme are constrained to respond in the only way possible with timely and wholehearted preparation of spirit and arms."

Says Italy Will Not Be Intimidated By Trade Agreements

Milan. Premier Mussolini's Il Popolo D'Italia informed Great Britain United States and France editorially that Italy would not be "intimidated" by economic agreements hostile to Fascism.

The editorial was the second sarcastic attack on democracies published by the newspaper.

The article used an editorial of The New York Times as a springboard for an assertion that to a threat of economic war the only reply was "timely and wholehearted preparation of spirit and arms."

It said there was no question of the three democracies employing military measures against dictators.

"The United States leaves to the European democracies the task of confronting the totalitarian states on the field of arms," the editorial said.

Britain never demonstrated outstanding war-like tendencies. Recently it has expressed reasons for which the English now have decided, as it once was said, to fight to the last Frenchman.

"The Anglo-American commercial accord as the most recent example used to demonstrate the existence of other means besides military measures to defend peace."

It was announced Nov. 18 that the United States and Great Britain had agreed to negotiate for a "reciprocal trade pact."

The newspaper deprecated the importance of economic resources in waging war.

"That war is made with money is true," it said, "provided the phrase is completed by saying money always is found to wage war."

Position Of Garnet Wheat

Trade Minister Eaker Announces Its Removal From Grade Three

Ottawa. Garnet wheat will be removed from the grade number three northern, it was announced by Trade Minister Eaker. He will introduce a bill at the session of parliament expected to open in January.

The minister, chairman of a cabinet committee on wheat, said he was acting on the recommendation of the board of grain commissioners. In addition, he had reviewed part of the evidence before the Turgeon grain commission.

"The announcement is made at this time," he said, "in order that the growers may be aware of the position of Garnet wheat in the marketing of next year's crop, and that they may take whatever steps are necessary in procuring seed."

At the present time, Garnet wheat is included from grades one and two northern. It has been permitted in grade three which calls for "red spring wheat of a fair milling quality." It is proposed to eliminate it from grade three.

Unity Candidate Wins

Social Credit Meets Reverse In Lethbridge By-Election

Lethbridge, Alta. In its first bid to electorates in southern Alberta, the Unity forces won a record vote victory over Social Credit in the Lethbridge provincial by-election. The final vote was: Dr. Peter M. Campbell, Unity, 3,940; A. J. Burnap, Social Credit, 2,210.

Pioneer physician of the range country, Dr. Campbell, endorsed by Liberals, Conservatives, some members of United Farmers of Alberta and the People's League of Alberta, was in the lead from the start of the poll count.

The vacancy was created through the resignation of Hans E. Wight, Social Credit.

First by-election in southern Alberta since the general election of 1935, it was considered a "test poll" for Social Credit.

In the 1935 general election, Wight polled 3,700 out of a total of 6,641 in a four-cornered contest with Liberal, Conservative and Labor candidates.

Ayrshire Breeders

Western Directors Elected Following A Mail Vote

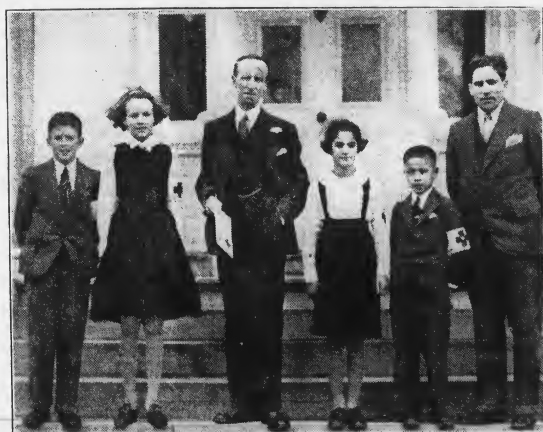

Ottawa. The Canadian Ayrshire Breeders' Association announced, following a mail vote, that William Brown, of Exeter, Man., has been re-elected director for Manitoba and Saskatchewan for a two-year term.

The association also announced appointment of Sam H. Shannon of Charlottetown, B.C., as a director for Alberta and British Columbia for a two-year term. Shannon, leading British Columbia livestock man and a governor of the University of British Columbia, succeeds John Richards, Jr., of Red Deer, Alta., as director.

Takes Oath Of Office

Toronto. Albert Matthews, Toronto, sworn in quietly as Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario by Hon. F. R. Latchford, the province's chief justice in appeal. Oaths of office and allegiance were taken in Premier Hepburn's office where the Ontario cabinet gathered for the ceremony.

British Army Changes Expected To Bring Vitality To Service

London. B. H. Liddell Hart, military correspondent of The Times and well-known historian, told Reuters News Agency in an interview that for the first time in history a junior major-general has been chosen as "chief of the imperial general staff."

Commenting on appointment of Viscount Gort to succeed Field Marshal Sir Cyril Deverell in that capacity, Mr. Liddell Hart said: "It is a most surprising change which should bring considerable vitality to the service."

Lord Gort and Col. Sir Ronald Adam, Lord Gort's assistant as deputy chief of the Imperial general staff, are closely acquainted with air problems, Mr. Liddell Hart said.

Sir Ronald was formerly concerned with air cooperation while Lord Gort taught himself to fly and is the only British general holding a pilot's license.

Appointments of area commands such as that which brings Major-General A. P. Wavell from Palestine to command the forces in southern Britain, were interpreted by informed quarters as a move to place "fighting" generals in area commands instead of keeping them at the war office or on the army council.

The move was expected to result in a closer liaison between the war office and area commands, eliminating delays in vital matters.

News-Chronicle (Liberal): "Whether the right appointments have been made, time alone can show. But this much at once can be said. Mr. Hore Belisha acted rightly in scrapping the seniority rule and looking for young officers."

Daily Mail (Independent):

"In undertaking this sweeping reform the minister and the government are exhibiting true foresight and vision. The Brit. sh. army, which, owing to the lag in the general process of rearmament, is unprepared for war, must be brought to the pitch to meet any emergency before an emergency falls."

Birmingham Post (Conservative): "If the admiralty and the ministry can work hand in hand with this new-minded and young-minded air official, there will be no need for a ministry of defence."

Military writers forecast far-reaching changes as a result of the shake-up in the army council. It is suggested one immediate effect will be reinforcement of the garrisons at Hong Kong, Singapore, Kapsy and Cyprus.

The other moves predicted were: A clear definition of the army's responsibilities on the continent; Acceleration of the mechanization process, including the territorial army.

Stimulation of recruiting by increased pay.

The calling on officers for harder work, with less regimental entertainment and luxury.

More commissions from the ranks and the placing of a premium on brains and ability over private financial means.

Japanese Soldier Is Killed By Bomb In Shanghai Parade

Shanghai. A bomb exploded in Nanking road as 5,000 Japanese troops marched through Shanghai in a victory parade. The parade scattered immediately.

The explosion was about one block from the Wing On department store. Soldiers ran in all directions. One Japanese soldier was reported killed.

The parade had passed through international settlement side streets along the boundary between the French concession and the settlement and entered Nanking road without incident.

More than 5,000 Japanese troops paraded through the main streets of Shanghai's international settlement in celebration of their nation's victories here and elsewhere in China.

The "victory parade" was held despite protests of British and other foreign officials and municipal authorities who held the demonstration provided opportunity for a possible fatal incident.

Tanks and armored cars escorted the Nipponese through the settlement while warplanes flew overhead.

Officially, the parade was given as a "transfer of troops from Jingshi to Hongkong" (from the west of the international settlement to its eastern part).

Japanese officials and officers, however, said the procession was symbolic of Japanese conquests in China and of Japan's might.

British troops on guard duty at Jessfield, on the border of the western defence sector, where the parade entered the foreign area, removed barbed wire barricades under direction of Major-General A. P. D. Telfer-Smollett, commanding British troops here.

When the parade passed the outpost, a British squad turned out and presented arms in accordance with military courtesy.

British, Chinese and Sikh police lined the route of march and police patrol cars stationed at intervals to guard against possible incidents. The parade took 20 minutes to pass a given point.

The bomb was said to have been thrown by a Chinese who, after it left his hand, was shot dead by a Chinese constable.

One British citizen was struck by a bomb fragment and slightly injured.

Japanese troops restored order quickly. One detachment surrounded the district, bayonets gleaming, while the rest of the parade reformed its ranks and continued down Nanking road.

Hundreds of Japanese troops were passing the Sincere and Wing On department stores, where hundreds were killed by projectiles shortly after Shanghai warfare broke out, just as the bomb was thrown.

On the westward-moving battlefield between Shanghai and Nanking the war was fought mostly in the air. Japanese reported a victory over Nanking, where they said six Japanese pursuit planes shot down 12 Russian-made planes recently added to the Chinese air forces.

Chinese despatches from Hangchow, capital of Chekiang province, reported more than 1,000 Chinese civilians were killed or wounded in a Japanese air raid on Hsiao-shan, 12 miles southeast of Hangchow. The Chinese said 1,700 buildings were destroyed and that 500 dead or injured persons already had been taken from the debris.

A Japanese communiqué said Japan's land forces were making "slow but satisfactory progress" along the battlements 50 to 80 miles east and southeast of Nanking, the nearly deserted Chinese capital, and Wuhu, 80 miles to the southwest.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

E. L. GRAY, provincial Liberal leader, in a radio broadcast, indicated that the People's League is the instrument of financiers and "big shots." He states that the Conservative leader, Mr. Duggan, is more intent on destroying the Liberal party as a force in provincial politics than he is in bringing about the defeat of the Aberhart government.

MR. GRAY also states that the Liberal party will co-operate with other parties in the effort to restore sane government, but will maintain its identity. He states that other political parties should also retain their identity, but this should offer no hindrance to all co-operating in the restoration of sound government. One can only conclude that he would favor a coalition party working for the time being under a leader to be named.

THE OUTSPOKEN remarks of Mr. Gray, particularly in reference to The People's League, will cause serious misgivings as to its efficacy in organizing co-operative action. It has been the instrument whereby the opponents of the government have been given the opportunity through protest meetings to voice their disapproval in "audible" fashion. The Journal, not knowing the inner workings of the League, as apparently Mr. Gray does, cannot pass its opinion on its set-up, or if it just aims to be another political party. Alberta has been a cockpit for startling political doctrines, and at present it requires a government of stability for reconstruction purpose. The province's morale has been badly shaken in the past two years. If Mr. Gray can merge opposing factions into a co-operative movement, uninfluenced by the dictation of the Liberal political machine, he will receive support.

IT IS the meddling of Federal politicians in provincial politics that causes misgiving among those not of the particular party in power. Last week Hon. J. G. Gardiner was the most important speaker at a Liberal convention at Macleod. Truly, it was a convention for the Federal association, but the fact remains that Liberalism is playing a prominent part just now in provincial affairs. One reason, doubtless, is that it is the better organized, and policies cannot be shaped in national or provincial affairs without efficient organization. But if politicians are too much in evidence, it will militate against co-operative effort in bringing about stable government in Alberta.

AS PROVINCIAL leader, Mr. Gray's outspoken utterances indicate that he wants to work out his own plan of co-operative action. He is an agriculturist at heart; not a professional politician, and there are men of various parties who would give him their support in a thankless task. But he will not be tied down by party shibboleths in trying to restore Alberta's credit as one of the nine provinces of a United Canada. Opinion may be divided on the wisdom of his utterance at this particular time, but it has certainly caused considerable controversy.

LOCAL representation in provincial affairs particularly is what should interest the workers of this constituency. Mine-workers preponderate on the voters' lists, yet have no direct representation at Edmonton. Mr. Duke is not a champion of labor. His record proves him to be of the type subservient to Mr. Aberhart. Labor should have a representative from its own ranks. It does not require an orator or a wily politician, neither a rubber-stamp individual who will do his master's bidding. It requires a man who has common-sense to present before the legislature and the bar of public opinion matters of vital interest to the coal industry and its workers. It is next to agriculture and the oil industry, the most important in the province, and requires a forcible spokesman who will insist that the industry receive its fair share of recognition in provincial legislation. The mine-workers of Rocky Mountain constituency should unite on selecting a capable labor representative who has the broad viewpoint towards the industry, for labor and capital must co-operate if both are to get a fair deal.

Silly Questions

A society matron was describing a visit she recently made to one of the down-town hospitals.

"It was a charity call," she explained, "and I was taken through the ward. What sights I saw! There was one poor chap whose head was covered with bandages. I asked him if there was something wrong with his head—and he made the most peculiar reply."

"What did he say?" asked one of the other ladies.

"Well," replied the society matron, "he looked at me very strangely and said: 'No, lady. My trouble is really an ingrown toenail—but the bandage slipped up!'"

Conquered Climate

THE STATESMEN who laid the foundations of this nation sought a diversification of industry to avert the cessation of work when winter came. The seeking was not in vain, for today the factories and mines and commercial enterprises of Canada level off that seasonal unemployment which was the bugbear of all Canada when the prairies were not yet settled and our manufactured products were mostly imported.

THIS INDUSTRY—the manufacture of cotton textiles—is one which helps to offset seasonal unemployment in the winter months when outdoor work is not feasible. When the country as a whole is prosperous, the mills of this company, for one, provide steady work for more than 7,000 persons. The primary cotton textile industry as a whole employs upwards of 20,000 persons. If there is a slack season, it is most likely to occur in July and August when other work is comparatively less difficult to obtain.

DIVERSIFIED farming is not always feasible; even Easterners fond of lecturing the West, are coming to admit that fact. But diversification on a nationwide scale was seen by our forefathers to be fundamentally important. The extent to which such diversification has been attained is the extent to which we Canadians can progress in good times and withstand economic shocks in bad times.

For Missions

Rev. W. R. Jeffcott of Pincher Creek made a special appeal at St. Alban's church on Sunday for financial support for the missionary funds of the Anglican church. Many people, he stated, asked why the church should support missions when it had such difficulties in supporting its clergy in its home field. But the command of the Lord was: "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel." He stated that the clergy was criticized a great deal by church members, who appeared to consider that they did nothing all week and preached only on Sunday, whereas they were expected to be on call at any time. Often those who complained the most did the least in supporting the church. That is the reason why so many of the clergy were getting along on so little that people often might wonder how they lived.

The singing of missionary hymns added to the brightness of the service by the choir, with Mrs. M. Clifford as organist and choir director.

TOURIST REVENUE

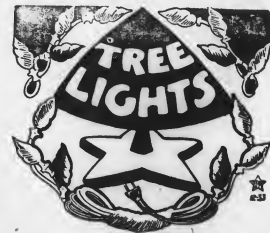

Tourists in Canada and the United States will spend well over a billion dollars in 1937 for gasoline, oil, repairs and garaging.

This forecast is based on figures supplied by the automobile associations. The American Automobile Association, for instance, estimates that $850,000,000 was spent in these commodities in 1936 and reports are that the "crop" of tourists this year is exceeding that of 1936 by 10 to 30 per cent.

In some states the tourist dollar is so sought after that it has become the largest single source of revenue. The future course of touring depends quite naturally on the extent to which the tourist is given those things requisite to his enjoyment, and free from unduly severe restrictions.

Excessive taxation, poor roads, restrictions at state borders, lack of parking facilities, and poor route marking, are the principal deterrents to growth of motor travel. It will continue to grow, so long as everything possible is done to assure movement of the motor car with greatest economy.

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

John A. Hope, an authority on big game and former editor of the magazine "Rod and Gun," died at his home in Vancouver. He was 73.

Flight Lieut. Patrick A. Booth and Private Norman Stewart were killed when their Royal Air Force plane plunged into the sea near Valetta, Malta.

Three elk from the herd in Buffalo National park, Wainwright, have been sent to Antwerp, Belgium, where they will be placed in the zoological gardens.

Senator J. W. de B. Farris, of Vancouver, has urged increased selective immigration to help unify Canada and aid in solution of her economic problems.

A British army flier was killed and four others injured when three Royal Air Force bombers made forced landings in a dense fog while en route to Penrhos airport, near Piffhill, Wales.

Foot-and-mouth disease has broken out in England, near Tilbury in Essex and at Lattimer, Buckinghamshire, the agriculture ministry announced. At Muckinghall, 1,000 sheep were condemned to slaughter.

Manitoba was the only Canadian province to have a good honey crop, according to L. T. Floyd, provincial apiculturist, who announced Manitoba produced 6,160,000 pounds last summer. The total yield was 2,000,000 pounds below 1936 production.

Canadian trade with the Irish Free State now is "35 to one" in favor of the Dominion, James McCormack, Canadian trade commissioner in Ireland, says, but he warned exporters should improve their marketing methods to overcome increasing competition.

Street crossing by pedestrians and automobile accidents were listed in Manitoba as the most dangerous to life of its people. The October report on Manitoba accidents showed 22 deaths and 322 persons injured. Seven of the fatalities and 188 of the injured resulted from automobile accidents.

Explorer Is Honored

Ellsworth Receives Medal in Recognition of Scientific Work

American explorer Lincoln Ellsworth, "Peter Pan of the Antarctic," recently received in London the Royal Geographical Society's gold medal in recognition of his scientific work in the cause of Polar exploration. A striking-looking, grey-haired figure, Commander Ellsworth is the modern type of explorer, says a writer in the Daily Sketch. He was one of the first to make use of the aeroplane for reaching into the polar regions when he accompanied Raoul Amundsen on his expedition into the Arctic in 1926, and was director of scientific investigation in Sir Hubert Wilkins' Trans-Arctic Submarine Expedition in 1931. More recently the Commander represented the American Geographical Society on the Graf Zeppelin when it made its flight over the North Pole. Next spring he is planning to make a 2,000-mile flight over the South Pole, following the trail blazed on foot by Captain Scott and his companions 25 years ago. Ellsworth's supply ship Wyat Earp is being refitted at Bergen in readiness to leave for Cape Town with a two years' supplies of food and fuel. The Commander himself has recently returned from Switzerland, where he has been examining the newest scientific instruments. With Commander Ellsworth in London was his good-looking wife. She expects to accompany her husband as far as the Cape. "I should love to go farther south," she stated, "but my husband hasn't let me go with him on his other expeditions because he thinks it is a man's job."

When Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor-General of Canada, said in a speech at Guelph last spring, he was interested in sheep raising, officials of the Royal Winter Fair made a note of it, and when His Excellency visited the show, he was presented with a woolen scarf, carded, spun, dyed and woven in the handicrafts section of the fair.

The Culture Of China

Discoveries And Inventions Have Given Much To Western World

The Western world owed much to the culture of China and many of the great movements of history had their genesis in discoveries and inventions of the Chinese. Dr. Charles T. Currelly of Toronto told a club in Ottawa. Where the essentially peaceful nature of the Chinese had, however, applied these to peaceful pursuits. His West, being war-minded, had developed them as instruments of warfare.

The idea of the crossbow, originating with the Chinese, had given the Romans the conception of the ballista, ancient forerunners of modern siege artillery. For fourteen centuries before the Western world had adopted the use of stirrups in equestrian, the Chinese had used them. The manufacture of paper, gunpowder, glazed porcelain, the invention of printing and the use of the magnetic needle had all been due to the Chinese, Dr. Currelly said.

The origin of the highly decorated and colorful Christmas cards can be traced to the "school pieces" or examples of penmanship prepared by schoolboys of old just before the Christmas holidays.

Irish Subaltern Won

Bluffed Germans in Togoland Out Of Key Positions

How a young Irish subaltern bluffed the Germans out of key positions in Togoland when the great war began has been made known for the first time—23 years later.

The subaltern is now Lieut.-Col. Frederick Bryant. The story was told by Major-General Sir Reginald Hooke and Lord Davidson at an Ashridge Fellowship reunion at Birkhamstead, Hertfordshire.

Sir Reginald related how, in the early days of the war, a code message came to the colonial office from a subaltern in the Cameroons. He advised he was going to take Togoland. Subsequent messages indicated he had "attacked" and that all was well.

Lord Davidson said the young officer split a tiny force into little parties. He had natives tell the Germans at Kamena that "enemy" forces were all over the district. He sent two colonial service agents to warn the Germans they had better leave.

Actually Bryant had only 1,000 men available. But the Germans were bluffed. They abandoned Kamena, and his powerful wireless station, a key station for communication between Berlin and German African territory.

Acknowledging he was responsible for the capture, Lieut.-Col. Bryant said at the time he was a captain in the Gold Coast Frontier Force. Both his superiors were in England and he was temporarily in command. His final cable to the colonial office said: "Togoland surrendered to me eight a.m. this morning."

A Friendless Reducé

Mystery Surrounds Quiet Man Who Left Large Fortune

A strange story of an apparently homeless reduced worth $92,000, who lived in a $10-a-week hall bedroom in New York for 16 years, came to light as the body of Frank De Forest Case, 80, lay in the morgue, unclaimed.

He was a quiet little man, seldom venturing more than a prosaic greeting. He died the victim of a heart seizure.

He never disclosed much of his background. Browning the hours and years away with his Plato and Aristotle, he sometimes fondly recalled big-game hunting for elephants in his youth, but without details as to his associates or family.

When detectives searched his modest furnished room, they found no evidence of his hunting days, a 30-30 rifle and a 12-gauge double-barrel shotgun both as carefully oiled and polished as though he were going on a big-game safari on the morrow.

Investigators found, too, apparent proof of his unsuspected fortune. In an old-fashioned bureau they discovered 36 bank-books showing deposits totalled $90,004 in banks in the New York district, and a dust-covered strong box contained three shares of bank stock valued at $17,500.

Invention Of Munich Bell Founder Produces Tones Of Music

Herr Oberacher, Munich bell founder, has invented an apparatus which he claims will take his occupation away by making church bells superfluous.

It consists of six small metal rods, the vibrations of which are transmitted electrically to an amplifier. The whole apparatus weighs less than four and a half pounds, and the resulting chimes are equal in volume to those of a peal of three bells with a total weight of nearly 11 tons.

Herr Oberacher claims that his apparatus can be adapted to play the entire scale.

Crossing Of North Atlantic In Six Hours Aim Of Germany

Senational developments in German airplane construction which eventually will permit crossing of the North Atlantic in six hours are forecast by Professor Heinrich Hermer of Kiel University. Writing in the Berliner Tageblatt, the professor said it is an almost fantastic aim which the German Luftthansa, qualified promoter of trans-ocean service, has set for itself—namely, to cross the North Atlantic in six hours, so that mail posted in New York at eight in the evening may be distributed in Berlin the next morning.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP

Golden text: Our fellowship is with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ. 1 John 1:3.

Lesson: 1 John 1:3; Revelation 21:1-7.

Devotional reading: Psalm 139:1-12.

Explanations And Comments

John's Purpose in Writing his Epistle is that Others May Share in his Fellowship with Christ. 1 John 1:3. The theme of this epistle is the earthly life of Christ. John's readers had not seen Jesus the Word of life, but John had, and he assures them of this fact over and over: we have heard, we have seen, with our eyes we beheld, our hands handled, we have seen, and bear witness, and declare unto you. "Because the brightness of the thing demanded that its truth should be certain and proved, he insists much at this point" (Calvin). And the purpose of his writing about "the eternal life, which was with the Father, and was manifested unto us," was that his readers might share in his fellowship with the Father and with his Son Jesus Christ. This is the keynote of the epistle, and in the writing, in the sharing with them of this fellowship, his joy was complete.

When We Have Fellowship With the Father, 1 John 1:5-7. The message which John had received from Christ, and which he now hands on, is that God is light and in him is no darkness (moral darkness, i.e. sin) at all. God is spirit (Jn. 4:24); God is light (1 Jn. 1:5); and God is love (1 Jn. 4:8). "Spirit, light, love are not more attributes than they are realities. They are probably the nearest approach to a definition of God that the human mind could frame or comprehend. The more we consider them, the more they satisfy us. The simplest intellect can understand their meaning; the subtlest cannot expound it." (A. Plummer).

It is not possible to live in sin and at the same time enjoy the fellowship of God. John next declares: "We have here a familiar figure of speech, meaning one's customary conduct. 'Do not the truth' means do not live in harmony with the demands of truth. 'The life as well as the statements of the lips is false.' 'Life' in moral darkness can no more have communion with God than a life in a coal-pit can have communion with the sun" (A. Plummer).

If we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another. The nearer we are to God, the closer is our fellowship with one another.

Percentage of pensioners to population above 70 years of age in British Columbia was 1.84; Alberta, 3.13; Saskatchewan, 3.27; Manitoba, 5.83; Ontario, 3.11. Maximum pension is $240 yearly. The pension is subject to reduction by the amount, if any, a pensioner's private income exceeds $125 a year.

Valuable Manuscript

Ball Caine's "Life of Christ" To Be Published In America

Guarded in an iron chest, a 3,000-word manuscript of "The Life of Christ," written by the late Sir Thomas Hall Caine, distinguished British author, has left for New York in the liner Queen Mary.

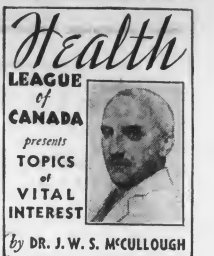

Derek Hall Caine, grandson of the author, took the book to New York, where it will be published next spring. His grandfather spent 30 years on the book while turning out his other publications.

It was reported the publishers paid a record price for it. The manuscript was insured for 160,000 ($300,000).

King Boris Of Bulgaria Is A Fully Qualified Engineer

King Boris of Bulgaria, who has been in London, is the poorest-paid monarch in Europe, and perhaps the unhappiest monarch in Europe, according to a writer in the News of the World. For £8,500 a year he has to behave like a dictator, although he is a democrat at heart, and he takes his life in his hands whenever he leaves his palace. He is the only European king to carry a trade union card—that of the Locomotive Engineers' Union of Bulgaria. His membership is honorary, but he is a fully-qualified driver.

ARTICLE No. 19

The World's Biggest News Story

The story that millions long for and the headline that would overshadow everything else in the morning paper, would be the announcement of a sure cure for cancer. This or any succeeding generation will be unlikely to read such a story. If they do it will probably be a fable.

Cancer is not a single disease. Like the "fever" of the last century, which included under that term, typhus and typhoid fever, scarlet fever, pneumonia and many other affections having the common feature of a rise of temperature, cancer is a combination of diseases. For this reason it is improbable that any serum, vaccine or other universal cure for the malady will be found. Dr. James Ewing, an outstanding pathologist of New York, when asked about the prospects for a cancer cure, remarked: "Anything which encourages the public to look for a universal cure for all forms of advanced cancer is unwise. One might just as well indulge in the hope of a cure for all forms of infectious diseases. Cancer comprises a great group of diseases resulting from different causes and requiring many different forms of treatment which are successful only when the disease is recognized in a comparatively early stage. 'The important fact that the public should know is that early cancer is curable in a high proportion of cases. Late cancer is rarely curable, and therefore every one should become familiar with the early signs of the major forms of cancer. The recurring announcements of a cure for cancer have no new value whatever.'"

Francis Carter Wood, director of the Crocker Cancer Research Laboratories, more optimistic, says: "I am unwilling to say that we will never have a cure for cancer, but I do not expect to see it in my lifetime—we can cure cancer in its early stages, but a specific that will reach into the cause is something entirely different."

Dr. C. C. Little, Editor of the Cancer Bulletin, organ of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, states: "All the evidence points in the direction of a multiplicity of causes for the initiation of cancerous growth in definite regions of the body. On the other hand I should say that the prospect of more or less successful prevention of early types of cancer was improving. No one," continued Dr. Little, "should harbour any fear or dread that he is going to get cancer because some member of his family or his antecedents had the disease."

Notwithstanding all this, optimism in the avenue of cancer will continue in the hope that a cure may eventually be found. In the meantime every one is advised to look for the early signs of the disease and seek treatment at the earliest date possible.

"If I may say so," Captain Duff-Hooper said, "that is not a particularly strong reason for involving yourself in his financial affairs."

"Possibly not," admitted the Earl, "but I liked old Gerald. He made me feel superior. Perhaps I did make a mistake—but I made it. At any rate," he added, triumphantly, "I wasn't as big a fool as the fellows who advanced a noodle like Gerald twenty thousand pounds."

The Earl looked rather less like an earl than a man who had come to fix the piano and rather more like a strawberry dipped in whipped cream than either; for his round, vague face was a rich, ripe red and his ruff of hair was as white as a laundered dove. He was a small-sized man who looked as if at any moment his baggy old suit of dimmed shetland would swallow him up.

"We are here," began the Earl, in the formal public tone he adopted when presenting prizes at a cat show, "to consider a most important matter. I asked you, Edna, to attend what we may call a family council because you've got a head on your shoulders—"

Duff-Hooper acknowledged the compliment with a nod like an emu pecking at a grub.

"And," continued the Earl of Bingley, "because you are, that is you may be, a member, so to speak, of the family, if you know what I mean—"

His voice trailed off.

"I know what you mean, father," said the girl who was the third member of the conclave. She wore an orchid sweater and olive jodhpurs. "But keep Cupid out of this. You can hardly expect Edna to bother about romance till the hunting season is over."

"Oh, I say now," protested the captain, "that's a bit thick, what?"

"We're waiting for the gruesome details," the girl said, addressing the Earl.

"Of course I shouldn't go round signing things," said the Earl. "I really shouldn't, you know. Most inconvenient habit of mine, it is, really. Why, only the other day, a chap swooped down on me whilst I was snailing the begonias and before I knew what I was about I'd signed an order for a washing machine on twelve easy instalments. What I shall do with the beastly thing I can't think. I've always washed myself—"

"Father, please!" said the girl. "We're here on a perfect day for riding—because you said the situation is serious. So please try not to wobble."

"Certainly, Rosa, certainly," said the Earl. "No wobble. But I really must tell you how I signed a subscription to a magazine just to oblige a chap who said he was working his way through Cambridge. I remember thinking at the time that he certainly did need an education and I hoped it was not too late for him to acquire one for he was forthright and had false teeth that clicked at me. It developed that the magazine was devoted to tattling. And," he added, "I do not tat."

"What a lovely day!" said the girl. "I really must tell you how I signed a subscription to a magazine just to oblige a chap who said he was working his way through Cambridge. I remember thinking at the time that he certainly did need an education and I hoped it was not too late for him to acquire one for he was forthright and had false teeth that clicked at me. It developed that the magazine was devoted to tattling. And," he added, "I do not tat."

"What a lovely day!" said the girl.

"Did he say with what?"

"Well, no, he didn't," said the Earl. "I brought up the point, too. He dropped out a lot of legal language about lease and rates and so forth which I can sum up by saying that the estate is in one devil of a pickle."

"As a last resort we could go to our friends," commenced Lady Rosa—

"I toyed with that idea myself," said the Earl. "Wandered into the House of Lords and hadn't gone five yards when two peers asked me for a loan of a few quid before I could ask them for a loan of a thousand. Ran into Dumpty Beddington, and he looked more like a scrooge than a duke. Patches in his pants. His country seats he calls them. Says that when his last pair of trousers wears out he'll have to wear the family armor. So we're all in the same boat of soup."

"Wish I could help," put in Captain Duff-Hooper. "Sorry but can't. Can hardly feed my nag as it is. I'll be sharing their oats with them shortly."

"Thanks, old boy. Good of you. I'm sure the Earl—" "Why, Rosa, you're crying! What's wrong?"

"Wrong?" Rosa sobbed. "How can you ask that? We're going to lose the home we love, the place where I was born, and you were born, and where all the Bingleys have been born and lived. We're going to be turned out to make room for a pack of strangers, maybe nasty, stupid vulgarians who will have no respect for it and its traditions and all the beautiful things it has. Isn't that something to cry about?"

"My dear child," said the Earl of Bingley, gently, "don't think I haven't indulged in a spot of private blubbering myself. I'm older than you—I mean to say being your father I naturally would be, wouldn't I?—and all my memories are bound up in Bingley. I was born here, played here as a boy, was married here, and lived here all my days, and I expected to die here."

The Earl blew his nose, and went on.

"I'd rather have them cut my heart out and eat it on toast than let Bingley get out of the family. However, tears are not tuppenny bits or I'd bawl from now till Doomsday. Let's give up hope, Rosa. Let's remember who we are and face it. So turn off the tap, there's a dear."

Rosa dried her eyes.

"You're right, father," she said. "I'm sorry I went away on you. I know you love every stone and beam and flower as much as I do. I know you're just not letting life get you down—"

She came over and kissed him on his strawberry brow.

"Talking of hope," said the Earl, "there is a ray."

"Really? What?" asked Rosa, eagerly.

"Well, it doesn't exactly dazzle one," said the Earl, "but it's better than a damp night in a swamp. In this morning's post I received a letter from old Mackintosh—"

"Read it to us, please."

"Gladly," said the Earl.

He fished in his pockets and pulled out a packet of letters, many of them sealed and dog-eared.

He opened one and read.

"Honored sir,

If I have bothered you, let me get rid of same, reasonable.

Respectfully,

Montague Phipps, Batchelor.

P.S. Also rats, mice, moths, beetles, etc."

"That's the rat," concluded the Earl. "Wonder why I kept this. Rats don't bother me."

He tossed the batchelor's epistle on the fire, opened the next letter and read.

When Fortune Smiled

New York Shop Found Valuable Etching In Charity Bundle

Fortune smiled on the Thrift House, a New York shop which sells cast-off property for charity, when an incoming bundle was found to contain an early etching by Whistler. Sorting the bundle, an assistant came upon the etching and noticed that it bore the name "Whistler." An art dealer valued it at more than $100.

The etching depicts a scene on the Thames in London and is believed to be one of a series of 16 the famous American artist made of the Thames Embankment about 1859. The bundle had been stored for some time and the donor was not known.

Birds Fly Very Low

Those who have watched migratory birds on their flight and have wondered just how high the birds go on their long trips are given the answer by the Biological Survey. Seldom, the survey has discovered, do birds attain an altitude of more than 3,000 feet, while 1,000 feet would be an average.

The "precious" metals are gold, platinum, and silver; mercury, also, sometimes is so classed.

Trans-Canada Airlines

Moncton To Be Terminus In The Maritime Provinces

Transport Minister Howe is reported as stating that Moncton would be the terminus of the Trans-Canada Airlines in the maritime provinces and the hub of ferry services connecting with other points in the three eastern provinces.

The minister said planes flying the eastern leg of the line would halt at Moncton, and that ferry lines would be established to Saint John, Charlottetown, Halifax and Sydney.

Mr. Howe repeated that the western leg of the line between Vancouver and Moncton would be in operation probably by next July 1. He did not say when operations were likely to start on the eastern section, but others close to the situation do not expect that service to start before the spring of 1939.

The Trans-Canada would be linked at Moncton and Rhedac, N.B., with the projected trans-Atlantic service which was surveyed last summer by Imperial and Pan-American Airways. Regular junction between the two services will be effected at Moncton, but Rhedac will be used as an emergency junction point.

It was said mail or passengers from the west bound for the maritimes, would be transhipped at Moncton and the big transport craft but the flights between Vancouver and Montreal would not be flown east of the Quebec metropolis.

Baroness Likes Simple Life

Belgian Winter Spending Winter 200 Miles North of The Pole

Anne Gulgot de Mishaegen, writer and traveller, left The Pax, Man, recently bound north to Granville Lake to spend the winter. She is a baroness with a palatial home, the Chateau de Mishaegen in Belgium, but she likes the simple life in the north attracts her.

The baroness is writing a travel book, based on life in the north. She has written two along similar lines, both in French, and hopes to have her third completed this winter. The work will be done in her lonely cabin, 200 miles north of The Pole.

A tour of Africa was added recently to her lengthy jaunts about the globe. She crossed the Sahara Desert by automobile and during hunting expeditions in Africa's wilds, begged a water buffalo, lions, antelope and other game.

The north drew her in 1931 and she staked several mining claims on reaching Manitoba. Then she glimpsed Granville Lake and the winter of 1934 saw her winter trapping. Usually the trek to the cabin is made by dog team in winter and canoe in the summer, but this year a plane took her to Granville Lake and months of study and writing.

The Silence Of London

Measured On Armistice Day Was Like Purr Of Cat

The great silence which descended on London Nov. 11 was measured and found to be as quiet as the purr of a cat. Equipped with a sound meter Sir Christopher Robinson, secretary of the Anti-Noise League, made a test in the Strand. Five minutes before the silence the meter registered 72 decibels—units of sound measurement. During the silence the meter recorded 32 decibels and afterwards 75 decibels. While the noise during the two minutes was as low as the purr of a cat it was slightly louder than countryside sounds recorded in a field. These sounds usually measure from 25 to 30 decibels. Ordinary conversation corresponds to 45 decibels.

Reward For Magazine

Publishers Believe Original Pastel Bound in True Copy

Somewhere in the world is a copy of a magazine that sold for 25 cents and now is worth $200 to the person who sends it to its publisher.

The magazine is Scribner's and contains an original pastel by Isabel Bishop, one of America's most distinguished artists. The original, called The Sleeping Girl, was bound into one copy of the magazine by mistake.

Scribner's has been running a search for American Painters and Mrs. Bishop's pastel is the ninth of the group. Her original was sent, through error, to the bindery in Philadelphia, and has disappeared. Since it is precisely the same size as the reproductions of Scribner's are certain it was bound into one copy of the magazine.

Bert Garmise, circulation director, said the issue in which the lost pastel was included went on sale October 22. The magazine's circulation is approximately 120,000.

"We are offering a reward of $200 to the person who returns the magazine containing the original," Garmise said. The pastel belongs to Miss Bishop. The reproductions are on white paper but the original is on brown paper.

Tobacco Marketing Co-operation

Canada Growers Realized Profits In Excess Of $100 Per Acre This Year

Simcoe, Ont.—With the final curling down on the 1937 tobacco marketing season, growers of Canada's newest large agricultural crop were able to reckon their profits in excess of $100 per acre.

This year's market, which saw 56 million pounds of fine-cured tobacco mapped up by buyers in less than ten days, realized in excess of fifteen million dollars. Growers will be paid for this year's planting 50,500 acres to the crop. Available figures show that tobacco produced a return of approximately $300 per acre.

Chief problem until 1934 was marketing. To-day Ontario's fine-cured tobacco growers belong to a marketing association which rigidly controls the export of the crop. Each year with the co-operation of the prospective buyers of the crop, the tobacco producers are "judged" and the planing is done purely on a basis of the available market for that year's crop, taking into consideration, of course, export prospects. The growers who comprise the association are allotted certain acreages to plant to tobacco.

When the crop is harvested, representatives of growers and buyers—10 in all—split the marketing association—meet and agree on an average minimum price for the crop. In 1937, for instance, the average minimum was set at 25 cents per pound, but the price actually paid was 28 cents. Last year the average minimum was 24½ cents and the price paid will probably exceed 27 cents.

With the co-operation of the farmer and the buyer, a crop of 58 million pounds was marketed in 1937. 1938 production—was moved this year at a price which sets a new high record for the crop.

The tobacco industry has proved a fruitful field for labor agitators. During the harvest season in August an incipient "strike" was halted when farmers succeeded in obtaining university students and unemployed youths and men from nearby cities who were willing to work for three dollars and more per day. When the market opened, another group of agitators succeeded in organizing 200 of the 1,700 land-owners and temporarily delaying the market, but the agitation collapsed for lack of support among the representative section of the industry.

To-day the tobacco industry in Canada is unique on the North American continent in that growers and buyers budget the annual production months ahead of time, amicably agree upon a fixed price which permits a substantial profit for all branches, and work hand in hand for future expansion.

Indian Lost On Reservation Followed Electric Line Into Village

Earl Beauregard, 15-year-old Chipewyan Indian, was lost 20 hours in the wilds of the Bad River Indian reservation near Ashland, Wisconsin.

Earl did look for the mossy side of the trees or tell the direction by the stars, send up smoke signals or rely on the red man's wood lore to get his bearings?

Earl did not. He merely looked for the white man's electric power line and followed it into the village.

Strange stories about donkeys are being told in letters to The London Times. One woman writes an animal Times in Yorkshire smokes cigarettes in approved style and then chews the butts.

All of the unrelated items in the 15,000 parts of the piano must be correlated to a point where construction and expansion amounts to less than one two-thousandths of an inch.

We don't need men with new ideas as much as we need men who will put energy behind the old ideas that are practical.

Little Helps For This Week

If ye endure chastening, God dealeth with you as with sons. James 5:11.

Trials must, and will befall; But with humble faith to see Ye prospered, and use it all, This is layperson to me.

Be not afraid of those trials which God may see fit to send upon you. It is with the wind and storm of tribulation that He separates the true wheat from the chaff. Always remember that He comes to you in your sorrows as well as in your joys. He lays low and He builds up. You will find yourself far from perfection if you do not find God in everything. He has provided a sweet and quiet life for His children, could they improve and use it. A calm and firm conviction in all the storms and troubles that are about them however things go, and they may find content and be careful for nothing, but in everything give thanks.
